HOW SOME THINGS WERE DONE.

According to the Magee men delegates elected and pledged to Magee had been cap-State officials, or delegates to any city, county or State convention. Not that we object to all or any one of these men expressing their individual preferences at the potta, but the use of them under authority of the city officials in initial to the best and dearest interests of the people and subversite of good government. And this convention, however, was captured for Magee, who gained by the contest in the First district of Findlay township, the Quay man, Barton, being declared ineligible because he was an officer of the election board, counted the votes and signed his own credentials. Mr. Hood, who was the contestant, was given his seat. The presence of Mr. Flinn and his lieutemants prevented, they say, any further tampering with their delegates, and wen them the committee men. It was claimed that the delegate elected in West Elizabeth was for Magee, but was forced by the threats of his employer to turn his credentials over to a Quay man. The latter was an employe of Mr. Kauffman, and that gentleman was on the floor as a speciator. Ed Hayes got an idea Mr. Kauffman was trying to induce the del-many privilege of voting. I have worked for the city for many years. I have voted for Chris Magee a very opportunity I had, and will continue to do so as long as I have a vote, and this convention can't touch my privileges."

John S. Robb caused some excitement by making uncomplimentary remarks to Secretary Murray while the West Elizabeth matter was up, and the latter leaped from the stage and struck Mr. Robb. Friends separated them, and Mr. Murray returned to his duties on the stand. It was claimed that the gentleman who held the credentials from West Elizaboth had not lived in the precinct the necessary length of time, and as it looked just then as though West Elizabeth might decide the matter the delegates moved in a body toward the stage and gesticulated and talked all at one time.

The Chairman seemed the only man in the room who had control of himself. After news of his victory in the Sixth Legislative district reached C. L. Maree yesterday there was no happier man in the county of Allegheny. He spoke freely of the manner in which the opposition had attempted to capture delegates by promises and by threats, and remarked: "For people running on a purity platform they have more gall than any I ever saw." Mr. Flinn, more gall than any I ever saw." Mr. Flinn, who had just arrived from personally superintending the Mages contest in the Sixth Legislative Convention, looked equally happy as he sat beside his chief at dinner in the Hotel Duquesne. Chairman Von Bonnhorst and other leaders and workers of the Mages side sat at adjoining tables and discussed the interesting points of the contest or congratulated each other on the result. ther on the result.

The Quay leaders yesterday afternoon expressed thomselves satisfied with the result, though Magee had the committee. They claimed their main point had been won.

"There are no scars after this fight," said N. P. Reed. "The point for which we contended was won when Mr. Flinn conceeded the necessity for a change in the rules and declared himself in rayor of it. I would have been satisfied to end the fight right there. The fight is sfled to end the fight right there. The fight is over now, though, and it is positively at an end. I am willing to work with Mr. Film, for I feel confident he will pursue a broad policy. He has won Pittsburg and is entitled to his Colonel Bayne said the chadge in the rules was the principal thing he had been fighting for, and he was satisfied with having carried that point. Walter Lyon, Esc., expressed himself in much the same way. These three Quay leaders hardly knew what change to propose in the rules. Mr. Reed and Mr. Lyon were inclined to favor the Crawford county system. Mr. Reed thought whatever change the committee decided on should be advertised for 30 days, so that the people might know all about mittee decided on should be auvernous days, so that the people might know all about them, and they ought to be given a chance to them, and they ought to be given a chance to express their views. They were informed that Chairman Von Bounhorst favored a return to the old plan of electing a county committee man from each election district and expresse themselves in favor of that.

TACTICS OF QUAY'S FOES. Mr. Bayne explained his apparent defeat in his own precinct in Bellevus. He said information had reached him that Mr. Kirker, who had been put up as a delegate in his interest, was pledged to Magee, and he considered it prudent to put up another delegate on Saturday, but it was then too late. Mr. Bayne ight a very good showing was made, thought a very good showing was made, considering the tactics of the opposition, and told of a case in the Fourth precinct of the Fourth ward of Allegheny to illustrate his point. Roger O'Mara and Barney McKenna, he said, had primed the delegate elected from the precinct with liquor and got his credentials from him, which they turned over to a saloon keeper. The latter, when talked to by Hon. C. W. Hobtusen on the subject refraction. inson on the subject, refused to give up the credentials, because he is represented to have said, Messrs. WAR AND A WATERLOG.

As Exciting Time in Assembly No. 5-Reselutions Against Home Rule Voters Bring a Storm of Indignation.

The Fifth Assembly conventions were held at City Hall last night. Convention No. 1 was called to order by Chairman Samuel Conners. A. C. Hoyer, Esq., nominated the following named gentlemen for mem Robertson for his own; J. F. Madden substituted the name of George Gosser for John Shangle on his ticket.

When the vote was completed and counted it showever, got out among them and by yesterday marning it looked for a time as though they had captured enough to insure the election of the ten Quay committee men.

When the vote was completed and counted it showed that 17 delegates had voted the "B," or Quay faction, ticket, against 75 who voted the ticket of the home rulers. According to the votes represented the result was: Quay. 2,280 39-56; Magee, 9,635 7-56; necessary to a choice, 6,644 8-56.

Mr. John A. Reed was walked upon by the Home Rulers for introducing the following resolution:

Mr. W. A. Magee again took the floor, saying:
Without intending any disrespect to the gentlemen who presented this resolution, I must say I think it is pure blather. It don't charge anything, men who presented this resolution, I must say I think it is pure biather. It don't charge anything, and although I have requested them to do so five different times the gentlemen have failed to name a single instance in which any employe of the city has done what their resolution insinuates. I have been in several political fights in this city and county, but in none of them has anything quite so mean as this been attempted. Five years ago, in a political fight, talk like this was prevalent all over the county, but in the end it was all sifted out and proved to be, as I have denominated this, blather. Why don't these gentlemen come out fairly and squarely with their accusations and give this convention something to fasten upon and investigate? I think their defeat in this fight has caused this resolution to be presented, and I am sorry for it. It's so mean. To say that the police and fire departments, or all of the city employee, could have caused their defeat is absurd. What did they get? About 2.50 votes against 15.000 on the side of what has been styled the home rulers, the men who are opposed to the interference of outside parties. They charge us with using under influences, when, in fact, they have been peddiing promises of patronage all over this county by the wagon load.

He again challenged anybody to name an in-stance of coarcion. Harry Doyle, of the Twenty-ninth ward, jumped up and said:

When approached by the depot reporters the Colone; glared at the representatives of the "Home Rule" journals, and his remarks about one paper were somewhat edifying to a wounded soul, yet there lingered about them a suspicion of sarcasm. To the reporters' inquiry, Colonel Havne said:

Hayne said:

Mr. Magee is a very smart man, and much smarter than the man who has taken his place. As a State politician, Mr. Magee has lost his influence and lost his grip upon matters. He has been relegated to a back seat, while his place is filled by a man who is eager to hold city work. Mr. Film had to step in and take hold of the heim, in order not to lose his prestige in politics and the city contracts, which went to him on this account. Mr. Magee feels very sore at his treatment and has cause to feel so.

I would like to correct the statement in the "Home Rule" organ to-day, that there were places in the revenue office promised to people who went with us. This is a falsehood. There was not a single solliary promise made to any man for a position of any kind. We do not do business in that manner, and our pathway is not strewn with broken promises.

Judge Frederick Hill Collier, of the Court of Common Pleas, will have no opposition for renomination. Be was born in Lancaster county, Pa., February 25, 1826. He was a son of the Rev. William Collier, D. D., a very distinguished Methodist minister of that period. The subject of this exetch received his preparatory deucation at Brookville, near Washington, D.C., and afterward entered Columbian College, gradmating therefrom with the class of 49. He read law and was admitted to the bar in the Capital City, but did not practice his profession
ing; then moved to Pittsburg and was admitted here in 1851, on motion of William M, Shinn, His popularity was general, and he branched out in the political line by run.uing for District Attorney, to which office he was elected in 1856, serving three years. He will elected Judge in 1850 by a flattering majority, serving ten years. In 1879 he was elected a second term without opposition; the Democrats elected Judge in 1889 by a flattering majority, serving ten years. In 1879 he was elected a second term without opposition; the Democrats refusing to put up a man.

For District Attorney Arch Rowand practically has the field to himself 'to-day, although there were other candidates for the position in the early part of the campaign. Archibald H. Rowand, Jr., the candidate for District Attorney was born March 6, 1855 in Allegheny City. He received a public school education and afterward: was under the private tutelege of Prof. Paul Leonhart at the Western University. The legal profession was chosen by him and he had as a preceptor George Shiras, Jr. He held the position of Clerk of the Courts from 1879 to 1855 when he was admitted to the bar. In the war he entered the service as a member of Company K, 1st West Virginia calvary, serving three years and receiving a medal from the State for his honorable services; also, one from Congress for great merit at the special request of General Phil H. Sheridan. As a lawyer he maintains a large bractice—both civil and criminal, having participated in some of the most celebrated cases in the annals of the cousty courts.

For, Coroner there is but one candidate, the present incumbent. Heber McDowell, or "Handsome Hebe," as he is familiarly called by his intimates, was born in the First ward, Allegheny City, October 22, 1854. He is a son of William McDowell, who was a Pennsylvania soldier and killed in action near Memphis, 1864. His rudimentary education was received at the First ward public schools, and he finished at the Iron City College prior to entry to active business life. He was first a messencer bov, and afterward occupying the same capacity for the C. & P. R. R. in the freight department, from which he engaged in the express business with the Merchants Express Line, which then ran into the city. A clerkship in the Police Department was followed by his selection to the office of Coroner in January, 1877, which he has since occupied.

A TRIBUTE TO FLINN.

Mr. Magee Vindicates Allegheny's Republican Management Against Outside Influence and Speaks in the Highest Terms of His Lieutenant General.

"The result of yesterday's conventions," said Mr. C. L. Magee to a DISPATCH reporter last evening, "is the blowing away of the lies and misrepresentations of the opposition during the canvass. The past man-agement of the party has been such as to make agement of the party has been such as to make Allegheny the first Republican county of the State. Our majority was 20,000 last year, an increase of 2,000 over the Blaine majority of 1884, while in Philadelphia the Blaine majority of 30,000 declined 40 per cent, dwindling to 18,000 for Harrison. The prohibition question and liquor legislation affected both counties alike, but Allegheny being free of factions increased her majority, while factional differences in Philadelphia are responsible for the decrease there. There certainly could be no objection on the part of Republicans of Allegheny county to the management which had made theirs the first Republican county of the Union. The attempt of outsiders to break down the Republican organization could only have the one object, to attempt to build up personal factions in this county. This attempt has been defeated by an overwhelming majority." whelming majority."
"Now that the fight is over, what about the reported differences between Mr. Flinn and yourself?"

"There is no truth whatever. I have realized "There is no truth whatever. I have realized for years the sterling capacity and brains possessed by Mr. Flinn. He is a strong man in every way and I know of no man occupying any position who has stronger executive capacity than he possesses. It ought to be remembered that outside the Carnegles and Jones & Laughlins Mr. Flinn is perhaps the largest employer of labor in Allegheny county. His integrity, political and personal, is of the highest character. I see the papers have been referring to him as my lieutenant. If he is entitled to any military title in which lieutenant figures it is to that of lieutenant general, with all the stars that go with the rank."

nomination of a successor would be made by the Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court and that then Judge Acheson would appoint the man nominated.

It is supposed that Register Shafer will be selected to wind up Register Harper's business, as the duties of the office require considerable study to master, and there isn't enough money in the remanets to justify a lawyer of high-priced ability in taking time to study the intricacies of the business of the office, while it would be a matter of plain sailing to Mr. Shafer, and he could close his own business along with that of the deceased.

The repeal of the bankruptcy law took effect August 39, 1878, and on the day previous "the last run of shad" was very heavy. Many of the cases are still unfinished, and some never will be, as, to certain people, that law is a purgatory, out of which they can never release themselves.

MR. DALZELL OPENED

the argument for Westinghouse in the fore noon, and finished his speech about 8 P. M. He claimed that Westinghouse owned the Sawyer-Mann patent, and that Edison was an infring-er. In explanation of the claims of Westinghouse much lamp lore was displayed describ-ing the ineandescent and arc lamps, starting with the King-Starr incandescent lamp of 1845, tracing the history of these lamps to 1878, when the Sawyer-Mann lamp was invented, and thence down to the patent in 1885. He held thence down to the patent in 1885. He held that there was no successful lamp until the Sawyer-Mann patent was devised. The fibrous or textile conductor was first used in it, as was the loop-shaped conductor. He said there was no question that both parties were using the same lamp. Mr. Dalzell read from the testimony of Mr. Mann. Mr. Broadnax and others, and referred to Mr. Lowery's visit to Mr. Mann's shop. He claimed that Sawyer-Mann ante-dated Edison by several months.

Mr. Dalzell's function was more of a general one than specific, and he spent most of his time giving a rehearsal of the various proceedings and phases of the case to date; interference proceedings, vegetable carbons, carbon filaments, etc., claiming that the only point originally at issue was one of priority of invention. At intervals Mr. Thurston and his coadjutors would take exceptions, and march up to tion. At intervals Mr. Thurston and his cond-jutors would take exceptions, and march up to the bench. A three-sided powwow would ensue between Justices Bradley and McKennan on one side and the opposing counsel on each of the other sides, the whole being set up like tenpins in a game of cocked-hat, and, between Sawyer and Mann patents, Edison and West-inghouse claims, the whole became so delight-fully confused that only those immediately in-terested could follow or seemed to care a con-tinental; they were merely waiting to see fun.

APPEAL IMPOSSIBLE. Mr. Dalzell contended that as between the contestants the matter was res adjudicata, and an appeal could not be taken from the commisoner. He claimed that considerable strain would be necessary to allow Edison relief by a bill in equity, although their Honors had shown some doubt on that head. The sum of the whole matter, as claimed by Mr. Dalzell, was that Sawyer and Mann were the patentees, irrespective of all allegations of bribery.

G. P. Lowrey, Esq., opened for Edison, and after stating that the gist of all the allegations of Edison's opponents was that all the principles involved were known and older than his invention, he referred rather sarcastically to some admissions to show that at a certain time in the progress of the incaudescent lamp the alleged inventors had not caught Edison's idea.

Mr. Lowrey warmed up finally and sailed into Mr. Dalzell regarding an insinuation that he, Lowrey, had visited Sawyer & Maun's shop, and, catching their idea, had imparted it to Edison. Mr. Lowrey characterized the imputation against his character as ungentlemanly and uncaused. He was sorry to be forced to refer to it, and would leave the matter to be judged by the Court. bill in equity, although their Honors had judged by the Court.

Mr. Wetmore arose to make an explanation out Mr. Lowrey refused to allow anything said in justification, and said he would not accept in apology, and asked the Court to refuse to llow it to be made, as it had been allowed by the other side to pass without rebuke. "I know you, Mr. Wetmore, to be a gentleman, but I want no apology."

MR. WETMORE SUBSIDED. Mr. Lowrey continued his argument, and read the testimony of a number of witnesses who, in company with himself, visited the workshop of Sawyer & Mann and inspected the light made by them, and all the testimony showed it to be from a straight carbon. He said there was not an honest thread in the plaintiff's case, and not a fact was brought out Plaintiff's case, and not a fact was brought out that was not misrepresented. As for himself the would deal with the case as one of distrust and one in which you could not go to sleep with any one of the facts.

Mr. Lowrey talks very easily and shows complete familiarity with the case. He has evidently given it much study.

It is scarce necessary to say, perhaps, that the suit excites much local interest. Not only was there are extensive sprinkling of members of the Allegheny county bar in attendance, but many other people, some of whom it was evident owned Westinghouse Electric Light stock.

TILE LAYERS LIE OFF. Trouble Between Mr. Shaw and His Men at the Monongabela House. It was stated yesterday that the tile layers and their helpers at work at the Monongahela House were on a strike, claiming that Contractor John Shaw owed them $275, and had reduced wages from $4 to $2 75 per day. It was reduced wages from $4 to $2.75 per day. It was also stated that Mr. Anderson, one of the proprietors of the hotel, had taken the contract out of the hands of Mr. Shaw and had given it to a man named Young, of Allegheny.

An attempt to find the status of the matter at the hotel failed, as Mr. Anderson was not about. Mr. Shaw was seen last night and at first declined to say anything, but subsequently stated that he had offered to pay union wages and did not think he should be required to pay more. He refused to talk at greater length last night, but said he would have something further to remark to-day.

FOOLING WITH A PHONOGRAPH Is the Way the Engineers' Society Amused

Itself Last Night. The Engineers' Society of Western Pennsylvania spent nearly the whole time of their meeting last night conversing with a phonograph. It proved the most entertaining speaker that has appeared before them in some time. It pleased all because it echoed the sentiments of all of those that conversed with it and with its agent, Mr. Clark, to introduce and show off its talents, proved very interesting to those present.

Messrs. George H. Paine, J. J. Keenan, John
McDonald and Henry Aiken were elected mem-bers of the society.

More Are Expected to Come to the Jeannette Window Works.

WHAT CAMPBELL-AND MOORE SAID On the Subject of Scarcity Among Window Glass Men Last Night.

VACANCIES WAITING TO BE FILLED

With a considerable amount of certainty it can be stated that the number of English window glass blowers at Jeannette will shortly be increased by the arrival of another lot of foreign workmen from the same source. Since the operation of the tank system has proved to be such a success, the proprietors of the Jeannette works are anxious to have their plant in full operation as soon as possible, and, inasmuch as they claim that there are no window glass blowers to be had in this country, foreign workmen have to be put into the vacant positions. There are now about 400 men at work on the new tank in Jeannette. Yesterday the flatteners started to work; to-day the cutters will commence, and to keep all the men going, blowers are

Mr. George Moore, manager of the Jeannette works, came purposely to town last night to-have a consultation with President James Campbell, of the Window Glass Workers' Union, and ask him whether he could supply him with any men. A DISPATCH reporter happened to walk into the office of the associa ion at 1505 Carson street when the two gentlemen were closeted together. During the conversation, which took place while the reporter was present, Mr. Campbell

CAMPBELL GROWS FACETIOUS. "This talk about window glass men being unning around the country by the thous is all nonsense. Our association has lost 23 members by death since the first of January, and I have now applications for 14 men in my possession; but I do not know where to get them. All the men are at work; there is not one looking for a job. If I had a dozen of them, I could place them within an hour."

Then a spirit of facetiousness seemed to take hold of Mr. Campbell, and, turning to Mr. Moore, he said:

"If it were not for the fact that this investigation committee ever in town were trying to

"If it were not for the fact that this investigation committee over in town were trying to put me into the penitentiary. I think I would come out to Jeannette myself to blow glass; but I suppose you wouldn't give me a job, for fear the Englishmen might object to me!"

Mr. Moore, while talking on the subject of scarcity of window glass men, said:

"Well, something has to be done. I have to get some more men to run the tank."

"How is it going to-day?" he was asked.

"First rate: the glass is even finer than yesterday, and the men are working ahead as if they had worked in front of the tank all of their lives."

"Now, regarding the scarcity of men, is it true that there are none to be had in this country?"

MOORE ADMITS IT. "Yes, I have come to see Mr. Campbell on that very subject, and, if he cannot help me, I "Are you expecting any more men from England?" "If we were, would it not be said that we were importing them under contract?" "No; admitting that the men came of their own free will, do you think that some more are "What are we to do? There is a scarcity of employes here, and if the men come over, why, there is nothing wrong in giving them

"Very well, indeed. The good workman in solid standing does not say anything. It is only solid standing does not say anything. It is only the man who has come over here as a scab him-self: he growls. The man who really did come over here from the old country under contract, he is the one to find fault with the arrival of these men; but a regular blower, in good stand-ing with his union and his friends, he does not complain?

Some significant suggestions have been made by the different lodges, and one of them will be specially considered. A proposi tion has been made to make a scale which will continue for two or three years, but will be based on the manufacturers' card rate for bar irm.

It is also proposed to change the scale in the steel mills in accordance with with Andrew Carnegie's ideas: but his scale is not acceptable, and will not be agreed to by the organiza-

DOYLE IN JOHNSTON'S PLACE.

Pittsburg and Western Service. C. E. Doyle, Superintendent, Train Mas ter and Superintendent of Telegraph, of the Cairo, Vincennes and Chicago Railroad, at Mount Carmel, Ill., was yesterday appointed Superintendent of the Pittsburg and Western, vice J. S. Johnston, resigned. Mr. Doyle is a well-known young railroad man in the West, and this appointment to the position on the Pittsburg and Western will no doubt do much to better organize the transportation de-partment of the road. Mr. Doyle is one of the nartment of the road. Mr. Doyle is one of the new general manager's pupils.

The retiring Superintendent, Mr. Johnston, has been offered a better position with another road, but has not accepted it yet. He will take a rest for several months, and by the end of that time he will have made up his mind what he intends to do. His friends say the cause of his resignation was due to the fact of Mr. McDonald being appointed over his head. Another resignation from the road will probably follow in a few days.

when the verdict was rendered. None of the members of the court would say mything about the charges until last night when it was learned from one of the member when it was learned from one of the members of the order that Mr. Ross had been acquitted of the charge of misappropriating funds but the charges of interfering with the trustees had been sustained. What this means was not mentioned, and the only interence that can be drawn is that he refused to hire a janitor recommended by one of the members of the board. A representive of this paper saw Mr. Ross last night, but he declined to talk on the subject, and would neither affirm nor deny any. ject, and would neither affirm nor deny any, thing. He said he did not know what the last charge was, as he had not heard of it.

WILL CRIPPLE THE STRIKERS. Colored Non-Union Men Want Their Race

to be Recognized.

James R. Wilson, a colored employe of the Solar Iron Works, writes to THE DIS-PATCH, and takes exception to the item pubshed in this paper, to the effect that the colored non-union men there had quit work, He says they are still working, and propose to continue doing so until the labor organ recognize the colored race more than in name.
He says the colored men have everything to gain by staying in the mill, and will cripple the strikers all they can.

Some Indigunat Miners. The miners on the Pittsburg and Wheeling division of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad held a mass meeting at Venitia and adopted a series of resolutions condemning certain opera tors. They claim they are not keeping the agreement made by the conference committees held recently. Some operators, they claim, are offering 70 cents, while others who pay the price, 73 cents, insist in paying it in store orders. A convention will be held on the 29th inst to consider the matter,

MORE WITNESSES EXAMINED.

Prades Council Continues to Invest-That Importation of Foreign Glass Workers Still an Issue.

The star chamber session of the Executive Board of the Central Trades Council of Western Pennsylvania on the importation of foreign glass workers under contract ended last night. Hereafter, if the alleged gullty parties are willing, the investigation will be conducted openly. There was a large attendance of Knights of Labor and union men at the investigation in the Knights of Labor Hall last night, but all were pledged to secrecy.

The only information that President Evans would give out was that two witnesses had been examined, but he refused to give their names. He also declined to give their testimony, saying that it would possibly be published some time in the future. The stenographer was present to take down the testimony in full, and William Frennan, Esq., wes there to administer the eath and question the witnesses. Western Pennsylvania on the importation to administer the oath and question the winnesses.

These two witnesses were on the stand for over an hour each, as the investigation did not close until after 11 o'clock. Mr. Evans was asked what had been done, but said he was not authorized to give out any information. He said, however, that a committee, consisting of Messrs. R. M. Carr., Wm. Smith and Dennis Hays, had been appointed to visit the officials of L. A. 300, K. of L., at their meeting on Friday night to arrange terms mutually satisfactory to continue the investigation, open to all. This committee is to report to the Trades Council at a special meeting of that body to be held on Saturday night the result of their visit.

be held on Saturday night the result of their visit.

This action is considered as a sign of weak-ening on the part of the Trades Council. They refused the offer made by Secretary Cake, of the Window Glass Workers' Union, to a public investigation which was made before the proceedings began. They now seem to be willing to make public all that may ofcur, but refuse to give anything that has occurred.

The special meeting of the Central Trades. Council on Saturday night will likely be an interesting one.
